

"TEMPLE OF DUSK" AT ALCAZAR ALL OF THIS WEEK

Sessue Hayakawa Will Star in Splendid Photoplay Offering for Entire Week

"The Temple of Dusk," featuring the celebrated Japanese star, Sessue Hayakawa, will be the attraction at the Alcazar beginning Monday.

This is said to be the crowning effort of this wonderful oriental screen artist, and abounds with tense dramatic situations that offers wide scope for Hayakawa to employ the talents that have made him one of the most popular actors before the camera today. The story is from the pen of Francis Marion, and had a great sale in book form.

A brilliant cast surrounds Hayakawa in "The Temple of Dusk," which was produced by his own company. The leading roles are handled by Sylvia Bremer and Jane Novak, two of the most beautiful young women in pictures who have appeared in numerous successful productions. Henry Barrows, an actor of wide experience, interprets an important role, and Mary Jane Irving, the little four-year-old tot, is an important factor in the play.

Both Miss Novak and Miss Bremer have a large following among motion picture "fans." Each is a beauty. Miss Novak is a striking blonde while Miss Bremer is an attractive brunette.

In addition to these players there are 12 Geisha girls and eight Japanese actors who were selected by Hayakawa from among players who passed through the Royal College of Drama at the University of Tokyo and were formerly members of the Imperial Dramatic company.

BAKING BREAD FOR AMERICAN ARMY IS HUGE UNDERTAKING

White Bread is So Fine That
There is None Like it on Sale in France

American Advance Zone, France, October 25.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Bread for the Yankee soldier in France is baked, not in the dainty one-pound loaves used at home, but in loaves that weigh 12 pounds each. They are so big as to be inconvenient and the size now is being changed to a uniform square loaf of four pounds.

All the baking is done on a huge scale. Asked for the receipt by which American bread has attained its superiority among the allied armies, the baker gave it as follows:

Flour, 160 pounds, sugar, salt, yeast, lard and water, 56 pounds; total 216 pounds. He did not define the amount of the various ingredients, possibly from fear of giving information to the bakers of the German army.

The huge quantities of dough always on hand "aging" or rising under the influence of the yeast look like a giant battery of snowballs. Each dough is a huge mass weighing 480 pounds which two men handle with difficulty. Over the soldiers' heads, naked to the waist, kneading and mixing. Then the huge mass rolls along to the next table, where it is drawn into long thick strings, which the soldiers deftly chop off in 12-pound loaves, never varying an ounce, ready for the ovens.

There is but one standard of army bread, for officers and men alike, and general Pershing eats exactly the same kind of 4-pound loaf as the soldier in the ranks. In fact, the American army bread is so superior to the civilian bread commonly on sale in France, that it is regarded as a great luxury.

Officers and men are besieged by civilians to get them some of the fine, white American bread, and American officers at hotels are the envy of other guests for the army bread to eat. It was suggested to the head baker that tradition gave women the first place as bread makers, and he was asked if women could not be utilized in making this army bread, thus relieving 2000 men for service on the fighting lines.

"Women wouldn't last one day in this kind of hard work," he said. "This is bread making by the ton, and by millions of loaves, and it takes physical strength to handle the huge quantities of material. It would be impossible for women and it is the hardest kind of work for me."

At the ovens a baking had just started. There are seven of these bakings each day, and seven each night, for the work goes on night and day, with two shifts of men, one going on at 6 a. m. and the other at 6 p. m. There are 20 companies, and each company of 100 men has 15 ovens. Each baking takes about an hour and 25 minutes, which yields an average of 14 bakings through the 24 hours.

Thousands of loaves of hot bread, fresh from the ovens being stacked in the tent warehouses, where for two days the bread is being allowed to cool, dry and season, before being shipped to the front. Hot bread, the escort explained, cannot be shipped, as it steams in the cars and begins to get musty and mouldy. There has been some complaint of this from the front of late, due to the shipping the bread soon after baking so the soldiers could have it crisp and fresh, and so the regulation has been fixed of holding it two days before shipment.

It is a huge process, this bread making for a whole army and like all the American undertakings, it is an object of admiration and wonder to the foreigners for the smoothness and perfection with which the gigantic field establishment is carried on.

COLUMBUS, MISS.

Columbus, Miss., November 16.—(Special.)—The Medical Military Musical Minstrels, an organization composed of members of the medical corps and other military stationed at Payne field, near West Point, as well as a number of ladies from both the aviation field and the city of West Point, will appear at the Columbus theatre next Tuesday night and will doubtless be greeted by a large audience.

The company embraces a number of accomplished entertainers, including Sergeant-Major Stephany and Corp. Johnny Green, who will be on the bands, and George Maroney, who will appear as interlocutor. The company is equipped with gorgeous costumes and special scenery, and the performance, the proceeds of which will go to the Payne field hospital fund, promises to be an excellent one in every respect.

A special term of circuit court for Lowndes county will convene at the courthouse in this city at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. The term was called

Enrico Caruso Comes To Strand in "My Cousin"

Wonderful Photoplay Offering for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—Billy Burke, in "The Make-Believe Wife," on Thursday, Friday and Saturday

The Strand theatre makes one of the most important announcements of the theatrical world when it tells of the appearance of Enrico Caruso, the distinguished tenor, in his first picture, "My Cousin," on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Mr. Caruso is not only the greatest tenor of modern times, but he is an actor of exceptional ability, as his work in this Artcraft photoplay amply proves. The story deals with the fortunes of a poor artist and a successful tenor, two characters diametrically opposed to each other, but which are marvels of art in Caruso's hands.

The photoplay is said by critics to be one of the finest pictures from every standpoint issued this season. That it affords the famous artist abundant opportunities for the display of his brilliant talents, is readily conceded.

In his second character Caruso has to fall in love with his model, and he makes love to her as he would to some great opera belle in the glare of the footlights beneath the Diamond Horseshoe at the Metropolitan opera house in New York.

While the end of the war automatically vitates the drastic work or fight ordinance adopted by the municipal council several weeks ago, the city will, for the present at least, maintain an employment bureau. Employers state that they are experiencing difficulty in securing labor, while many negroes complain that they are unable to find jobs, and the bureau will serve to bring together the men who are seeking work and those who have work for them.

Vernon Castle, Patriot

Irene Castle, whose "Everybody's" tells of certain newspapers which, in relating the accident of her husband's death, put that Vernon had "made good by his glorious self-sacrifice." To his wife, "Their idea seemed to be that by his death Vernon Castle had atoned for his earlier sins, whatever they may have been. It seemed inconceivable to them that a dancer, a professional dancer and man of the stage, could be a fighter. He was not a fighter in the sense that he liked war. He was not a soldier of adventure nor any other kind. He hated discipline, and the narrowness of life in barracks. He loved above all other surface things, the theatre, restaurants, cafes and other places of amusement.

All this he gave up gladly because his country was at war, and he was too good a sport to shirk his share of the hardships and dangers that are the lot of a soldier. He thought he ought to go into it.

"Speaking before a meeting of the Actors' Equity association, Francis Wilson said that there seemed to be an impression that Vernon Castle had redeemed himself by his glorious death. The speaker declared that in his opinion, Vernon Castle's evolution of the modern dancer had brought joy to so many Americans, young and old, that 'he is to be credited with one of the greatest achievements of the day.'"

Uruguay is to have a permanent electrical exposition at Montevideo to teach and extend the uses of electricity.

The metal cap of a new fruit jar is slightly convex, and by depressing the center the edges are sprung away from the jar.

Besides the great Caruso picture is a special musical programme, a Pathe news and a comedy "Up a Tree," starring Billy Parsons.

As its attraction for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the Strand is presenting Billy Burke in her very latest Paramount picture, "The Make-Believe Wife," by Edward Childs Carpenter.

There is an abundance of fine comedy in the picture, and Miss Burke declares that her role is an excellent one. "I was immensely pleased with the role of Phillis Ashbrook," said Miss Burke. "Fancy a woman who is engaged to one man being lost in the mountains with a man who is the fiancé of the woman's best friend. They are caught in a storm and are obliged to seek refuge in an old cabin where they are forced by the elements to spend the night. Of course this situation has developed in motion pictures, but never just like that in 'The Make-Believe Wife.'"

One of the James Montgomery Flagg comedies, "Tell That to the Marines," is an added attraction to the programme, as is also a Pathe news.

Strategy

From the Outlook.

We hear a lot of joking about the shortage of marriageable men on account of the war," Senator Smith of Georgia, is credited with saying, "and I guess it must be true, judging from my proposal I just heard of from my state. Here was how the girl worked it out on her bashful suitors: 'There goes our minister,' she said. 'He's very poor. I wish I could hand him a five.' 'Let me do it,' exclaimed the youth unsuspiciously, in a fervor of benevolence. 'Oh, Archie, that is too sudden,' huddled the sweet young thing, and what chance did he have?'

Every ocean steamer that leaves an American port is required by law to have a wireless telegraph apparatus and operators. An act of Congress, passed in 1910, made it unlawful for any ocean-going steamer carrying passengers to leave or attempt to leave any port of the United States without being equipped with an efficient apparatus for radio communication in good working order, in charge of a person skilled in the use of such apparatus. After the Titanic disaster, in 1913, this act was amended by providing that "the radio equipment must be in charge of two or more persons skilled in the use of such apparatus, one or the other of whom shall be on duty at all times while the vessel is being navigated."

Well, Hardly

From the Indianapolis News.

The agent for a popular brand of automobile was demonstrating a car to a Columbus woman. She was eager to know all about the hidden mysteries of the machine, so she asked questions every time the agent turned this or that.

"What's that?" she asked, when the agent grasped a lever and brought the car to a sudden stop.

"That," he explained, "is a brake. It is used only for an emergency."

"I know," the woman nodded, "something like a kimono, isn't it?"

The modern Ethiopian travels from Jerusalem to Gaza on the way to his home country, for up the Nile, by railroad train. Reports from Palestine indicate that since the British occupation of the country Gaza, the chief city of the Philistines in Old Testament days, and the scene of Samson's exploits, has become an important railroad center, the broad-gauge railway having been extended from Gaza to a point 50 miles to the northward, and the old Turkish line from Ludd to Jerusalem, as well as the recently constructed branch line from Gaza to Suran Junction, has been restored and is now in operation.

No Alternative

From the New York Globe.

There is in the employ of a Brooklyn woman a cook who has managed to break nearly every variety of article that the household contains. The mistress' patience reached its limit recently when she discovered that the cook had broken the barometer that hung in the dining room.

"Well, well," sighed the lady of the house in a resigned way, "you've managed to break even the barometer, haven't you?"

Whereupon in a tone equally resigned the cook said: "Yis, mum; and now we'll have to take the weather just as it comes, won't we?"

Flowers for the Dead

Upon the recent death of an American politician, who at one time served his country in a very high legislative place, a number of newspaper men were collaborating on an obituary notice.

"What shall we say of the former senator?" asked one of the men.

"Oh, just put down that he was always faithful to his trust."

"And," queried a cynical member of the group, "shall we mention the name of the trust?"
